

Commander-in-chief

It was not uncommon for the pharaoh, who was also the commander-in-chief of all Egyptian armies, to personally lead battles, a gesture that showed not only their strength but also their commitment to maat and the gods.