

Hydra

This snake-like creature had many heads. If someone tried to kill one of the heads, two more would grow in its place. This made the monster nearly impossible to defeat. According to legend, Heracles killed Hydra with help from his nephew, Iolaus. As Heracles killed each of Hydra's heads, Iolaus immediately burned the neck with a torch. This prevented new heads from growing there.