

Bacteria

Bacteria are single-celled prokaryotic organisms. These are some of the oldest life forms on earth – and some of the smallest! There are likely millions (or maybe billions) of species in this kingdom.