

Plantae

Plants are complex eukaryotes that generally make food through photosynthesis. There are many, many different types of plants. The smallest plants can barely be seen, while others can grow hundreds of feet tall – like redwood trees!